4. Preparations for the Special Session of the UN General Assembly on the African Economic Crisis

(a) A Critical Review of the African Economic Situation

The paper gives a critical and in-depth assessment of the African economic situation with special reference to the deepening of the crisis that has plagued most of the African countries, and which has been exacerbated by natural calamities and a worsening international economic environment. The paper analyses the basic critical areas in Africa's development process with special emphasis on the root-causes of the multi-faceted crisis. In this regard structural problems and constraints as well as economic policies are assessed with a view to outlining the basic elements of a solution in line with Africa's Priority Programme for Economic Recovery 1986-1990 adopted by the Heads of State and Government of the Organization of African Unity. Further, the paper focuses on the major implications of the priority programme in terms of policy reforms, subregional and regional prioritisation of programmes and the international support measures.

(b) Africa's Priority Programme for Recovery: implementation at national, subregional and regional levels

(International support in addition to national, subregional and regional efforts in the implementation of the Priority Programme)

The paper gives the financial implications in each of the priority area identified in Africa's Priority Programme for Economic Recovery, by individual country and by sub-regional organizations if applicable. Each country profile is introduced by a background on the rationale of the country Priority Programme and indicates for each programme the national effort under-way and planned, the external assistance pledged and partially or totally received and the financial gap. The document further attempts to identify the most affected countries in which the recovery process is particularly urgent and requires massive external support.

5. Improving the management of African economies: some problematic areas

Under this agenda item, the Conference will have before it document E/ECA/PSD.4/4. Improving the management of African economies : some problematic areas. There is a growing consensus that in the search for the possible causes of and the solutions to the economic and social crisis confronting Africa attention should focus on the management of the economy. Since national economic management is itself a complex subject whose various elements cannot be covered adequately in a short paper, the present paper examines a selected number of critical areas where action is urgently needed for the accelerated attainment of the goals and objectives of development and economic growth that African governments have now set themselves. The areas covered are: measures for fruitful and sustainable collaboration and co-operation between government and other decision-making units in the economy, effective mobilization and utilization of financial resources, deepening knowledge of the natural resource/raw material base of the economy, keeping wealth-generating resources intact and productive and the role of foreign resources in the development and economic growth of Africa.

It is hoped that the issues raised are illustrative of the scope and direction of reforms needed to enhance improved management of the African economies. It should be noted that this agenda item was referred to the Joint Conference by the Conference of Ministers.

6. Technical and financial assistance in planning, statistics, demography and informatics and documentation

The current situation and recent trends in technical and financial assistance in the five fields will be examined. The Joint Conference may wish to suggest improvements, particularly with respect to the co-ordination and effectiveness of these arrangements.

7. Election of officers

A Chairman, two Vice-Chairmen and a Rapporteur will be elected for the meeting of the committee.

8. Agricultural credit and resource mobilization in the rural sector

The secretariat will present a study on «Agricultural Credit and the Mobilization of Resources in Rural Sector» in document E/ECA/PSD.4/7. The objective of the paper is to review the contribution made by formal financial institutions to enhance agricultural development particularly small holder cultivation. The paper discusses some major issues pertaining to the link between credit, extension and marketing, interest rate structures, default, cost structures and resource mobilization problems of formal credit institutions. The study also proposes some strategies which could be adopted to cope with the problems of credit and resources mobilization in rural areas.

Documentation:

Agricultural credit and the mobilization of Resources in rural sector, E/ECA/PSD.4/7.

9. Sectoral planning in subregional arrangements

On the basis of selected co-operation structures in Africa (ECOWAS, CEAO, UDEAC, PTA and SADCC) the paper first surveys the link that exists between the objectives of the various subregional structures and the planning undertaken to achieve these objectives. In analysing sectoral planning the paper focuses on two sectors namely agriculture and industry. The analysis of the level and type of planning undertaken in each sector is, again, based on the experience of the selected co-operation structures. In each sectoral case, objectives and constraints of each subregion are identified along with the means adopted to achieve the objectives and to overcome the constraints. In this respect both sectoral plans if any, as well as implemented projects or those in progress are examined. The paper finally draws some lessons from the different experiences and makes some recommendations relevant for each sector.

Documentation:

Sectoral planning in subregional arrangements, E/ECA/PSD.4/8.

10. African multi-national enterprises, collective planning and economic co-operation

The paper focusses on the need to create a mechanism for the establishment of African multinational enterprises and its role in the economic development planning of African countries. The problems, constraints, harmonization and measures to promote their effectiveness are also discussed in the context of the need for collective planning and policy co-ordination and economic co-operation in Africa.

11. Perspectives at the subregional level : the CILSS countries

In implementation of resolution 501 (XIX) which recommended the undertaking of perspective studies at the subregional level, the paper analyses the perspectives of economic development in CILSS countries. After reviewing briefly the socio-economic conditions in the 1973-1983 period, the paper describes the perspectives of the subregion for the period 1983-1988 on the basis of two scenarios : a historical scenario and a normative scenario whose objectives correspond to those of the Lagos Plan of Action.

12. Review of progress in short-term forecasting and multisectoral planning models

The meeting will be invited to consider a progress report on the activities undertaken and problems encountered in implementing short-term forecasting and multi-sectoral planning models in the African region. The role of the informal sector, the transformation of technological coefficients, the incorporation of prices and other financial variables and the energy balance in African countries are some of the issues which will be raised for discussion. The report will also consider the establishment of short-term forecasting system in some African countries to enable them to devise and initiate short-term adjustment measures to combat internal and external economic disturbances.

This agenda item will review the operation of the two regional demographic training institutes, the Regional Institute for Population Studies (RIPS) and the Institut de Formation et de Recherche Démographiques (IFORD). As the United Nations Fund for Population Activities (UNFPA) has reduced its funding of the institutes and may continue to do so in the future, the paper addresses the problems faced by the institutes and proposes alternative solutions for the future of the institutes that would allow the African countries they serve, to become more fully involved in their management and financing. Given the continued need for demographic training facilities, the aim of the study is to assure the future existence of such facilities for the benefit of the African countries. The joint meeting of the RIPS and IFORD Governing Councils will be convened as recommended by the two Councils.

25. Population Dynamics in Africa

This agenda item will deal with two main components of population dynamics, i.e. mortality and fertility. The most recent estimates will be presented to show the high levels still noticed in Africa. Other related issues like sterility and traditional practices of fertility regulation will be discussed. Coherent policies will be called for in order to improve the situation.

28. Election of officers

A Chairman, two Vice-Chairmen and a Rapporteur will be elected for the meeting of the committee.

29. Training of Documentation and Information Scientists in Africa

The problem of the lack of trained information scientists in Africa has been discussed in various international meetings. It has been argued by some that this problem is caused by the lack of suitable training schools in Africa. Only schools offering traditional librarianship exist. International organizations such as UNESCO are making efforts to improve the training facilities in Africa. The establishment of a regional centre for information science in the University of Ibadan in Nigeria is an example of such efforts. The Conference is therefore expected to consider in detail the content of training of documentation and information scientists in Africa.

Documentation:

Training of Documentation and Information Scientists in Africa, E/ECA/PSD.4/32.

30. Improving co-operation among information scientists

(a) Association of documentation, information and library scientists in Africa

Lack of co-operation among many information and documentation personnel in Africa has been mentioned as an obstacle to real progress in this field of activity. For their interests to be taken care of, an association for such scientists seems appropriate. The conference therefore will be expected to discuss this issue, and determine whether such an association has a role to play in the improvement of information flow in Africa.

(b) Association of computer scientists in Africa

Proposals for the formation of an Association of Computer Scientists in Africa will be presented by the secretariat. This is in response to a request made at the Third Session of the Joint Conference.

33. Selected studies on:

(a) An assessment of industrial capacity utilization in African countries : A methodological framework for the measurement of excess capacity

The Third Session of the Joint Conference of African Planners, Statisticians and Demographers recommended that the ECA secretariat should undertake a preliminary research activity on the various problems associated with the under-utilization of industrial capacity in African countries. The study has been carried out by the secretariat to demonstrate the intensity of the phenomenon of excess capacity with particular emphasis on the kinds and causes for the wastage of factor inputs, especially capital, in manufacturing industries in Africa. A set of policy recommendations is spelt out along with a proposal on a methodology for measuring industrial capacity utilization and the mechanisms to be established to generate the requisite statistical data and other technical information pertinent to a clearer understanding of this dimension of productive efficiency. This «ideas» paper, therefore, is aimed at facilitating the deliberations of the Joint Conference and subsequently lead to a set of practical and action-oriented policy recommendations on the subject of excess capacity in Africa.

(b) Relationship between production and trade in African manufactured goods

The paper attempts not only to throw light from a statistical point of view on the major links between production, apparent consumption, prices, external and intra-African trade of manufactured goods, but also to identify and analyse the short-comings affecting the data available. In view of the growing impact of manufacturing industries in the region and the emphasis placed on them in the Lagos Plan of Action, the Conference will be requested to identify priority areas and make general recommendations for bridging the existing gaps in the data as far as their relevance for policy formulation is concerned.

34. Demographic data collection and analysis - evaluation of the 1990 round of population and housing censuses in Africa

Under this agenda item the secretariat will present a report reviewing the experience of the African region in the 1980 round of population and housing censuses. The report will put emphasis on the problems encountered during the various stages of the census operations from the planning and organization up to the analysis and dissemination of results. It is hoped that the outcome of the discussions on this agenda item will assist African countries in the 1990 round of population and housing censuses.

35. Kilimanjaro Programme of Action in Population

The Kilimanjaro Programme of Action on Population and self-reliance development presents a comprehensive set of recommendations aimed at promoting sound population policies.

The Twenty-First OAU Summit endorsed and called for its implementation. This agenda item will address the implementation of the programme. Its main recommendations will be brought again to the attention of the conference which will suggest ways and means to assess the implementation of the programme and to suggest actions for appraising and monitoring this implementation in future. The particular responsibility of the African planners in promoting sound population policies will be stressed.

36. The role of national family planning programmes in the ECA member States

A paper will report on an evaluation of the demographic impact of population programmes in five countries, Egypt, Ghana, Kenya, Morocco, Tunisia. It will examine some issues related to this evaluation, then present the demographic and the family planning objectives included in the population programmes and address the question of the impact of family planning actions on the demographic trends. The paper will conclude by some recommendations aimed at improving programme delivery.

Planning, Informatics and Documentation (joint committee meeting)

37. Issues in the dissemination of information for economic development planning

Lack of information in the planning process of many African countries has been mentioned as one of the main stumbling blocks to proper planning. The Lagos Plan of Action, also makes specific reference to the problem of lack of information for planning purposes. The emerging advanced information systems and the structural changes taking place in Africa are focussing attention on the role which information activities can play in modern economic development. There is therefore the need to create appropriate institutions for the transfer of information, in particular, the dissemination of scientific and technological information, which is regarded as a vital element in promoting the technological change so crucial to economic growth of African countries.

The Conference is expected to discuss some of these issues.

Selected issues, such as choice of data base management system (DBMS), uni- or multi-subject data bases, hardware and software considerations, the link between national and international statistical bases, encountered in the development of statistical data bases will be presented. The discussions which follow should be directed towards making recommendations for achieving a more effective implementation of this new technology which may provide invaluable socio-economic information support to development plan formulation and implementation.
